EMPEROR WILLIAM VEXED.

He Feels That France Has Been Discourteous to His Country.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

BERLIN, June 24.—Hamburger Nachrichten says that despite the assurances of the press to the contrary, the Kaiser is really very much vexed at the offensive reticence of French officers toward his own and German officers' invitations. The Frenchmen showed plainly that their participation in the Kiel celebration was an enforced act, and that France is still awaiting a fit moment to attack Germany.

JAPAN DISTURBED.

Russia is Suspected of Intrigue in Korean Affairs.

[Special dispatch to the Transcript.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 24.—A Tokio letter under date of June 23 says: "As the days pass there is no alleviation of uneasy feeling that pervades the east with regard to Korea. There is a general sense that Russia is intriguing in Seoul and that she may at any moment call upon the Japanese government to fulfill its pledge of recognizing Korean independence. Public uneasiness is aggravated by the news that Count Inouye, the Japanese representative in Korea, is about to return home."

OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED TODAY.

Lord Rosebery's Government to Step Down and Out.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

LONDON, June 24.—In the House of Commons today, Sir Wm. Harcourt announced that as the adverse vote of Friday was in effect a vote of lack of confidence, the Government had therefore placed its resignation in the hands of the queen who had accepted the same. The Government, he said, would hold office only until their successors had been appointed.

TWO MURDERERS SENTENCED.

New York to Have Two More
Electrocutions Very Soon.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Recorder Goff today sentenced William Caesar, the West Indian negro, who murdered Mary Martin, to die by electrocution the latter part of July. Judge Ingraham sentenced Richard Leach to be electrocuted during the week beginning August 15. Leach killed his wife.

Today Promises to be a Fine one on Hudson at Poughkeepsie.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 24.—The conditions for the postponed race between Cornell, Columbia and University of Pennsylvania today are most favorable. It is clear and warm and scarcely a breath of wind is blowing. The water is perfectly still and at 4.30, the time set for the race to start, strong ebb tide will be running. The crews are in fine condition.

DEAD AT HIS POST.

An Express Messenger is Found
Shot to Death.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

FOINNEY, Tex., June 24.—Express Messenger Cunningham was found murdered in his car, when the Texas & Pacific express train reached here last night. His body was pierced by three rifle balls. Nothing was stolen from his car. No clue of the perpetrators of the murder is to be had and the whole matter is veiled in mystery.

GAMBLING HOUSES PAY TAXES

How a Western Mayor Would Close Them if He Could.

[Special dispatch to the Transcript.]

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 24.—A petition signed by many citizens was presented to Mayor Moodson yesterday, asking that the against gambling be enforced. The mayor replied that if they would render proper assessments of their property, whereby sufficient revenue could be realized to support the city government, he would close every gambling house in the city and not before.

Mrs. William White spent Sunday with friends in Pittsfield.

A HOT MAIL.

Postoffice Clerks Spurred to Duty by the Contents of a Pouch.

Some of the post office clerks had an interesting time sorting the 8 p. m. mail from the east an evening or two ago. Among the contents of the pouch were about a dozen queen bees which had been mailed to a local fancier. The boxes in which the bees were placed for transportation had been broken and the queens, finding themselves at liberty thought it was proper to reign, which they did for a short time, and until war was declared and they were ignominiously annihilated with a piece of board wielded by one of the clerks with the vigor of a professional carpet beater. Although the clerks worked with unusual sprightliness, they were longer than common in sorting that mail, which was by all odds "the hottest of the season." They hated to kill the bees, but the mail had to be attended to and the force could do no better than to sail in under the Dutchman's motto, "Beesness is beesness."

Old "Colonel" is Dead.

Old "Colonel," one of the best horses in this section, and owned by Liverman Flagg died very suddenly Saturday evening.

"Colonel" was bought nearly ten years ago by J. H. Flagg in Albany, N. Y., but Illinois was Colonel's birthplace. For the past few years he has been one of the wheel horses of Mr. Flagg's gray four-in-hand, but during his first years of service, when Charles Abbe drove for Mr. Flagg, was on the lead. "Colonel" and his mate, "Old Reliable," were detailed Saturday, because of their unusual endurance, to draw a fishing party in a three-seated carriage to Sadawaga, Vt. The party was made up of John Coswell, Walter and Frank Daniels and the father of the Daniels boys, Wallace Dodge, Michael Sheals, Warren Phillipsborn, Edward Clark and Malcolm Dick. Two of this party rode in a buggy. On the road "Colonel" was taken ill with colic. The young men got out and walked and did all in their power to help the suffering creature. Still they pushed on and when within two miles of Sadawaga "Colonel" fell. The bowels were ruptured by the fall. The suffering horse struggled to his feet and with great pain worked on to the barn, dying within ten minutes after he had gained his sheltering roof. Old "Colonel" was buried near the spot where he died. The departure of "Colonel's" well known presence from the scenes of his long labor will be missed by many. He had never been sick before and had never taken a lame step, and was fifteen years old. It is not too much to say in "Colonel's" obituary that he has left a large circle of friends who will miss his good, honest services, and who sorrowfully say: "Poor old 'Colonel' is dead."

Some Old Cemetery History.

Some interesting statistics about the old cemetery have been gathered by those interested in the park movement. There are forty-three grave plots belonging to a single family; nineteen families have two graves each; three have three; two have four; three have five; one has seven, and one has twenty-three. Darby is the family name of the one having seven and Darling the name of the one having twenty-three. The earliest grave was in 1802 and the name of the person buried was Nabby Darling. In the same year William Darling was buried. There are ten graves illegible. The total number of graves is 155.

"North Ad." Made Easy.

This was a toast responded to at the Williams college freshmen class supper the other night in East Agogue. The meaning of the toast is this: that when the electric cars are running between here and the college town, North Adams will be made much easier of access than formerly. The college men cheered and cheered the new electric road, and took a view very different from that of the faculty's. The new road may be assured of the students' sympathy and support. But how about that last car back at night? Won't it have to be a very large, strong, well-built, muscular-manned car, Mr. Richmond?

Base Ball Games Saturday.

Amherst beat Williams at Amherst in a close and exciting game by a score of four to two. Luck favored Amherst, as each side made two errors, but Williams made more hits than her opponents. The college standing now is: Williams, 714; Amherst, 429; Dartmouth, 375.

Their Annual Picnic.

The class of '96, Drury high school, picnicked at the Cascade, Hoosac Tunnel, Saturday, going on the 10 a. m. train and returning at 5 p. m. The class has picnicked at Hoosac Tunnel every year for the last four years on the day following the graduating exercises. About twenty-five members went this year and they had one of the pleasantest times they ever had there.

Bradford M. Couch.

Bradford M. Couch, father of M. E. Couch of this town, died at his home in Northampton this morning, aged seventy-six years. He had been suffering for some time from fatty degeneration of the heart, which was the cause of his death. He had been a well known resident of Northampton for many years. Mr. Couch's wife died three years ago. He leaves two sons and three daughters. M. E. Couch left for Northampton at 10 o'clock this morning.

In the District Court.

Patrik Curley, Peter Farrell, Liberti Florio, were fined $3 each for drunkenness. James Flaherty was fined $5 for the same offense and Nicola Canino was fined $5 for drunkenness and assaulting an officer.

Sydney Simmons loaded his goods today and will leave tomorrow night with his family for Waltham, to which place he moves for the purpose of having his little daughter, who is suffering from paralysis, treated by a Boston specialist.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE.

One Hundred and First Commencement of Berkshire's Honored Institution.

THE BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

The Graves Prize Speaking. Dr. Carter's Report, Mission Park Meeting and Address to the Mills Society. A Deficit of Income.

The 101st commencement of Williams college is now in progress amid the beautiful natural scenes that distinguish this observance, and the assembly of numerous delightful June weather which promised to continue until the close. The encircling hills and the symmetrical valley never were more satisfying in their surpassing charm than now, and the park-like aspect of the village, with its fine cottage buildings, its handsome residences, and its well-kept lawns, is altogether congruous to this conspicuous educational event.

President Carter's annual report, which is really a part of commencement, has to say among other things that college property has been taxed this year for the first time to the amount of about $400, contrary to the custom elsewhere in Massachusetts. Dr. Carter has hopes the custom may not continue, and says in this connection, as follows:

When one considers how eager the people of North Adams have been to pay $50,000 to secure the erection of a normal school in their town, and recalls the honor that Williams college has brought to this community, and further learns that elegant houses have been built here and the taxable property of the town largely augmented and an immense increase added to the value of the real estate, because the college is here, the growing antagonism to the college appears strange.

Besides this unusual deduction from college income Dr. Carter has to report a total deficit of $8,000 for the year, despite careful economy in management. The exercises began Saturday evening with the Graves prize-speaking by the seniors in the Congregational church, as follows: "Social evolution," S. F. Patterson of Cooperstown, N. Y.; The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," Elmhurst Sweet, Jr., of Albany; "Economic lessons from recent strikes," H. P. Mosley of Westfield; "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," J. H. Peck of Pittsfield; "Edmund Burke's American policy," F. W. Menzies of Newark, N. J.; "Wordsworth and his contemporary critics," J. R. Allen of Greenfield.

President Carter's baccalaureate, delivered at the Congregational church, Sunday morning to the graduating class and the usual cultured attendance that fills that auditorium at this distinguished service, was as usual a scholarly and able discourse, the abstract of which we give herewith:

Dr. Carter's Baccalaureate Sermon.
Thou Art His Disciple, But We Are Disciples of Moses, John, 9:28.
The great movements of the race have had their origin in great teachers. The great teachers have had devoted pupils. The world has become wholesome and pure by discipleship. Because of a loyal discipleship that neither time, nor space, nor persecution, nor the fascinations of wealth or power could subvert, we meet here in a Christian church this morning, every one of us better, stronger, nobler than he would have been had there been no disciples of the Man of Nazareth.

Can we give explanations why this discipleship to Christ become so effective and tremendous a force? One reason is undoubtedly found in the breadth of the aim held before the disciples. His mission was to bring men, the whole of each man and all men back to God. That was the grandest mission ever undertaken on earth. To come into the world with such an aim, or to embrace such an aim at the opening of manhood, an aim so transcendently above and beyond what had been cherished by any previous prophet or reformer, and to perceive that this aim must be confined to his followers; that these not stupid, but narrow-minded altogether Jewish-minded disciples must be lifted by incessant effort to his universal conception, must be so trained that they should do greater work after his departure in accomplishing his aim than he could do while living, what a patience; what a love; what a series of disappointments and pathetic hours were necessary to impart such teaching! Think of the vitality that went into it; the majestic sweetness that bore with all their failures and fears; the unflinching courage that his divine insight summoned, and answer, was there ever teaching like this? Was there ever a discipleship so transforming, so ennobling as this? Paul did not have it in the flesh, but he had caught the secret of it when in that inspired letter to the Corinthians he wrote, "We all with unveiled face reflecting as in a mirror the glory of the Lord are transformed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from the Lord, the Spirit."

A vitally efficient feature of this teaching was the freedom of it. When he chose the twelve, Mark tells us, it was "that they might be with him and that he might send them forth to preach. They tell when they begin their work of Him, of his life and death, of his resurrection, but they set up no formal instruction of his methods of preaching. What does this mean, except that they passed out from the formal stage of discipleship and grasped the inner meaning of that blessed relation. The noblest trait that does not bind down the loving soul to formulas and phrases; does not prescribe modes and moulds; does not rivet the activities of future years to the necessities of today. True discipleship must issue in independence, must prepare for exigencies not yet visible; must so absorb the spirit of the Master that, when there are no definite precedents, it shall nevertheless, work diligently in a broad and loving and independent way, saying "My Master did not lay down rules for every contingency, but I know Him and the meaning of his life and I do what He would have me do."

His breadth of doctrines corresponded with the largeness of his aim and the freedom of his method. It was no narrow school that He founded; no sensitive fondness of retirement that He favored. In the high-ways, in the fields, on the sea, on the hills He led his scholars into relations with every kind of men. He knew how to meet them all; his fine insight discerned at once the need and prejudice and misery and sin of each one, but

A BAND STAND IF.

C. W. Gallup Stands Ready to Make Good
His Offer.

Two years ago the town voted to instruct the selectmen to grant a location on which to build a band stand, the Cadet band promising to build the stand. The selectmen chose a site at the monument, and the band set to work to raise money for a stand. C. W. Gallup came forward and offered to build a suitable stand. He was at considerable expense getting plans and when he was ready to erect the stand the selectmen interfered, saying the churches objected. There have been many locations suggested since for a stand, none of which seems to be as desirable as the selected site. The latest suggestion is to build a stand on the academy grounds. In view of the agitation for a park at the academy Mr. Gallup went and viewed the proposed site this morning. He does not think the grounds as they are at present are the proper place for such a stand as he desires to build, but if the park plan carries he will be very glad to erect a stand that will be an ornament to the park and to the town.

A new awning fifty feet long has been placed on the restaurant building at the Hoosac Valley park. The park is in prime order and is visited by many parties these days. A large party from Braytonville spent Saturday afternoon and evening there.

President Bliss of the Boston & Albany road was in town last week with his private car. He went to the Vermont line and looked about more or less. It is surmised by some that his visit to this section was occasioned by the talk of extending the Hoosatic road from Pittsfield to Williamstown to connect with the Fitchburg.

A special town meeting was held at Clarksburg Saturday for the purpose of considering the advisability of building one or more schoolhouses. A committee was appointed to investigate the matter carefully and report at an adjourned meeting to be held next Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

John Proud of Greylock met with a serious accident yesterday. He was moving a hay rake from one place to another and the horse began kicking. It kicked part of the rake to pieces and then kicked Mr. Proud's knee, breaking it. Dr. Mignault was called and attended to the man. The injury is a serious one.

Thomas Quinn is remodeling his house on East Quincy street, the one formerly owned by the late John F. Arnold. A story has been added to the wing, a bay window is being put on and a new piazza will be built. The house will be very greatly improved by these additions. C. F. Barden is doing the work.

A new wall is being built in the north part of the old cemetery along the road that leads in from this side. It supports a terrace. There was a wall in its place and it was decided to top it with a new railing. The workmen found that it was not safe enough and that a new one was necessary. The new one is being built of stone and cement and will be substantial.

Dr. D. R. Dewey was home over Sunday from Poland Springs, Me., where he is stopping for his health. He walks fifteen miles a day, eats and sleeps well and is rapidly improving. He returned today and will remain till August.

Ticket Agent C. H. Hubbard returned Saturday from a two weeks' vacation trip in the South. He visited Galveston, Texas, St. Louis, New Orleans, Norfolk and Old Point Comfort, Va., and other points of interest, traveling 4,000 miles in all. He went to St. Louis expressly to see the union passenger station there which is the largest and finest in the world. Mr. Hubbard sailed from New York to Galveston, and on the return trip came by water from Norfolk, Va., to New York. The journey was very pleasant throughout, the hottest weather encountered being at New Orleans, where the mercury stood at ninety-one early in the morning the day he arrived there.

Still For Annexation.

HONOLULU, June 24.—The first legislative body of the republic was called to gather on the 11th inst. The president's message was read. It deals with many questions of local interest. In speaking of the annexation with the United States, the president says: "While the annexation of this country to the United States of America has not been accomplished, it still remains the policy of the government. Its consummation will be earnestly sought, with an abiding faith that such a result will be a lasting benefit to our country."

After Many Years.

LANE, Tex., June 24.—Some years ago Benjamin Weil secured judgment for $400,000, the value of cotton confiscated in 1866 by General Compa of Mexico. Mexico paid the money, and it was placed in the United States treasury. It seems there are suspicions that the judgment was received on fraudulent representations, and the United States government is now suing the heirs of Weil for the money.

Praise For Our Warships.

KIEL, June 24.—Emperor William yesterday visited the U. S. cruiser San Francisco, flagship of the American squadron. He expressed his admiration of the American warships present and his acknowledgment of their participation in the Kiel fete.

Wanted in Boston.

BOSTON, June 24.—Special Officer Shields arrived from Syracuse yesterday with Frederick H. Wilcox, who is charged with wrongfully appropriating jewels and money valued at $800 from Thomas D. Roberts.

On the Road to Recovery.

ATLANTA, June 24.—Physicians think that Governor Atkinson will recover. The members of his family who were summoned to his bedside have returned home.

Death of Father Mass.

MILWAUKEE, June 24.—St. Rev. Francis Mass, who introduced the Capuchin order into the United States, died at St. Angles' convent, Fond Du Lac, aged 79 years.

Japs Visiting Pekin.

SHANGHAI, June 24.—The Japanese flag was hoisted at Pekin yesterday, the Japanese minister and suite having arrived and received a courteous reception.

Spaniards Defeated.

HAVANA, June 24.—In an engagement at Vema Alta the Spaniards were defeated by the insurgents.

FOR A PUBLIC PARK.

The Idea of Converting the Old
Cemetery Not Given Up.

A PETITION TO BE CIRCULATED.

No Clause in the Deed Specifying that the Ground Should Revert If Not Used for a Cemetery. Obstacles and Advantages.

As was stated a few days ago in this paper the movement to convert the old cemetery near the Methodist church and other lands there into a public park is not going to die out at least not until it is seen whether the public are in favor of such conversion. It may be here stated, by some, that the deed conveying the property to the deacons of the Baptist church does not specify that the property shall revert to the original owner or her heirs provided it is used for any other purpose than that of a cemetery. There is, though, in the deed a clause which says the ground is to be held "in trust for the use and benefit of all persons who have connections buried in said ground and all others who may hereafter wish to have connections buried there, said grantor reserving for himself and connections a similar right of burial in said grounds." This clause seems to be the only objection to the conversion of the property into a public park, but, as those who have connections buried there have not had an interment in the grounds for years, and as most of those who might lay claim to the right given by the deed have lots in the public cemeteries, it is not believed that anyone on sentimental or other grounds will object to the removal of the bodies interred in the cemetery to other proper burial places nor to the grounds, in conjunction with adjoining property, being converted into a much needed public park. Many prominent persons who have the best interests of this town in mind favor the idea, and to find the expression of the general public the following petition will be circulated for signatures:

"Whereas in 1843 Lydia Colegrove, in consideration of one hundred dollars received of various persons in North Adams, deeded the burial ground adjoining the Drury academy grounds to the deacons of the Baptist church to be held in trust for the use and benefit of all persons who have connections buried in said ground and all others who may hereafter wish to have connections buried there, said grantor reserving for himself and connections a similar right of burial in said ground;

"And whereas this burial ground has been entirely cared for by the town for about forty years, no provision having been made in the deed for care and maintenance;

"And whereas no burial has been had in this ground during a period of thirty years, but some of the remains have been moved to other places;

"And whereas we believe that if all were thus removed they would be better cared for and held in dearer remembrance and public interest subserved by converting said land into a public park;

"Therefore we, the undersigned, petition you, the deacons of the Baptist church, that you quit claim your title in the aforesaid premises to the inhabitants of North Adams to be used for the purpose of a public park, provided the remains and headstones be removed without expense to the kindred and buried in our public cemeteries in such localities as kindred shall provide, and in failure of such provision that they be decently buried under the direction of the sexton in suitable lots.

"And we, further, petition the trustees of Drury academy that so much of the academy grounds as is embraced in the terrace on the west and south and has been denied to the use of the students of said academy for more than twenty years, be henceforth used in connection with the aforesaid burial ground for a public park to the end that the pupils of the said academy may enjoy the use of said grounds in keeping with the spirit of the donor, Nathan Drury.

"And we, further, petition the selectmen of North Adams to confer with the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal church and secure an option on their property north of their edifice and adjoining the before mentioned premises with a view to purchasing same by the town for public park purposes."

The property belonging to the Methodist church mentioned in the petition is the house and grounds used at present as a parsonage. It is understood that this property can be secured at a reasonable price. As the petition states there is a large portion of the academy grounds unused by the pupils, and were the cemetery, the unused portions of the academy grounds and the church property to be combined they would give a park of over two acres in extent. It is stated by some of the best citizens of the town that such a park is very much needed. It would be a resting spot, they say, of easy access and, no matter what steps may hereafter be taken for the improvement of the present public park or even the providing of another one, this proposed park because of its central location would be still specially valuable. It would seem that the removal of the remains interred in the cemetery would be a difficult and expensive matter, but the advocates of the plan have had an estimate given by one who knows and the bodies could be removed at a cost of one dollar each. As there are but few over 100 bodies interred in the old cemetery their removal would not be very expensive. Those who are most deeply interested in the scheme do not wish to cause the town to assume any heavy or undesirable obligations, but they recognize the growing necessity of a small, centrally located park and the growing land values and believe there is no better time than the present to take steps to provide such a park nor on better place, all things considered, than the old cemetery and the adjoining grounds mentioned. They do not believe the plan can be begun and carried out in a day, but they do believe that immediate steps should be taken to secure these places to the town for park purposes so that the town, at whatever time it may think proper, can put them in shape for the use for which they were secured.

"OFFICIAL SCOOPER" TOO LIMITED.

Our esteemed cotemporary has originated the phrase, "Official Scooper," to designate in its columns the daily Transcript. So far as its use by our cotemporary is discreditable and obnoxious we cannot aspire to influence, but so far as its application is due to honest ignorance we may attempt enlightenment, and where it is willfully misleading, a regard for newspaper morals impels us to reformatory endeavor.

The use of the phrase grew out of the fact that the Transcript printed first the statement of the School committee giving their reasons for removing Mr. Spaulding, notwithstanding the knowledge our cotemporary had of the existence of this piece of news, and its efforts to obtain it for publication. The preference then shown the Transcript made our cotemporary's designation of "Official Scooper" sufficiently correct, so far as that priority of publication was concerned. But its subsequent use of the phrase in consequence of further exclusive announcements by the Transcript involving the doings of the committee has been inaccurate. None of these after pieces of news came to us from any official proffer or in consequence of any official intimation that they could be sought for, but were got as a part of the Transcript's general news-gathering activity, precisely in the same way its other newspaper material is procured, and their substance if not their detail, could have been got as readily by our cotemporary as by the Transcript, through the employment of the same enterprise and effort. But this fact should not be pleasing to our cotemporary's self-consciousness, and that liability of human nature to shut the eyes to what is disturbing to consider, may excuse our charitable desire to attribute the use of "Official Scooper," above referred to, rather to ignorance than a willful misuse of words.

But this cloak of charity with which we herewith attempt to cover our cotemporary's newspaper sins, is not broad enough to include its ill offending. There remains, in connection with its application of "Official Scooper" to the Transcript, an inaccuracy which we cannot free from the burden of misleading intent. While we can impute ignorance of the Transcript's resources for news-gathering as an excuse for our cotemporary, we cannot extend this plea of ignorance, without reflecting upon it, to the simplest rules of English grammar. Our cotemporary must be aware of the effect of an adjective when connected with a noun. This use of an adjective is to "qualify"—as the rule states—the noun; that is, to limit and lessen its application. For instance, the noun, "horse," used by itself, includes all horses of all colors; but when the adjective, "white," is connected with it, and the phrase, "white horse," is formed, its application is restricted to horses of the one color mentioned, and so the connection of the adjective, "official," with the noun, "scooper," limits the acknowledgment of the scooping to official news only. But all those readers of the Transcript who are also readers of our cotemporary are aware that our advance announcement of news has been even more conspicuous, and much more frequent, in connection with the most important happenings here, than it has in that restricted field of occurrences termed, "official." But no one of our readers is so clearly aware of this fact as is our esteemed cotemporary. Doubtless this apprehension has been even painful; but, while this sensibility may have become dulled by continuous repetition, the customariness of the experience has made this knowledge only the more sure, so that our cotemporary must have realized the inadequacy of the adjective, "official," in connection with the admission of the Transcript's achievement conceded in the substantive, "scooper." Its past cannot, of course, be changed, but for the future our cotemporary, when it desires to call attention to any special news-gathering in which the Transcript has outstripped it, can simplify its appellation by using the single word "Scooper," and convey the general admission of the Transcript's priority in the publication of news. Or, if it is disinclined to let this admission into its columns without some qualifying word, the phrase, "General Scooper," applied to the Transcript, would be accurate and descriptive of the existing situation. Or, if by the word, "official," has become endeared to it, the phrase, "Official and General Scooper," would save it from any tendency to mislead.

It may be urged that this endeavor to aid our cotemporary in a reformatory way is the exercise of a presumptuous hope for good, but, so long as the inspiring couplet,

"While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return," remains to incite to altruistic labor, the Transcript feels bound to keep that alluring flame as a beacon for our cotemporary's advantage, with the ultimate hope that the above general opportunity for redemption will not by it be permanently passed by.

Cuba has to bear the expense of her rebellions, and is now paying $12,000,000 a year interest for that begun in 1898, which caused a debt still amounting to nearly $200,000,000.

A LAUDABLE PURPOSE.

[From the Troy Times, June 21.]

The North Adams Transcript in an editorial article warmly approves the scheme for properly marking the site of old Fort Massachusetts, which had its origin in Williamstown and Williams college, has gained a hold on the people of North Adams and has been discussed by the board of trade of that town. The Transcript says:

The idea of marking in some fitting way the one really historic place in this vicinity is to be heartily commended. There is something of value for even a busy town like our own outside of its mills and shops and factories. Whatever may lead men to remember the heroic history of the earlier days of this country, the hardship and sacrifice necessary to make life possible in this portion of New England, is of real value to this and every future generation of North Adams. And a monument or a park enclosing the site of the fort long ago marked out for our early ancestors to settle here, would be only a fitting tribute and wise acknowledgment of our regard for the indomitable energy and splendid manhood which laid the foundation of New England life.

Viewed in another light, it would be a matter of local pride to have this historic place properly and beautifully marked. It would add to the attractiveness of North Adams. It would be a thing pleasing to strangers and guests amongst us. In short, it would be a step in the right direction of elevating not only the appearance, but the general tone of this community's life.

If Williams college will join hands with North Adams to mark or preserve the site of old Fort Massachusetts, should it not be done? Movements of this kind are both patriotic and utilitarian, and for many reasons it is to be hoped the plan to be preserve Fort Massachusetts will be successful. A great deal has been done in this line of late, and localities connected with American history are receiving careful attention. In this way interesting associations are perpetuated and valuable lessons taught. Apparently Williamstown and North Adams are not to be laggards in this display of wholesome public spirit.

Charge of immorality in the Boston schools is being used in Manitoba as an argument against the public school system. Mr. Martin, a member of the French Canadian party in that province who are carrying on the agitation for separate schools, has charged the public schools in the United States and particularly those of Boston, with being fountain-heads of immorality. The most mysterious feature about the whole thing is the identity of the "reports" which Mr. Martin read. No report has ever been made on such a subject as the state of morality in the schools either by the city of Boston or the state. Where Mr. Martin got the "report," and who made the investigations, which are claimed to be authoritative, is a matter of which the school committee and officers of instruction know nothing.—Springfield Republican.

John Ruskin, the famous writer on architecture and art, has written a letter in reply to the question, ought parents to leave a fortune to their children? He says that parents ought to educate and maintain their children until they reach maturity. He adds:

Damned modernism eats its children young. When they are strong throw them out of the nest, but let the nest be always open to them. No guilt should ever stand between child and parent. The doors should be always open to a daughter who is a barlot or a son who is a thief, if they return, but no fortune should be left to them.

Revelations of the existence of wholesale infanticide have startled London within the last few days. Within a fortnight the bodies of sixteen infants have been found in London, and during the past eight months 102 bodies have been found in the same district. The most of these babies had been strangled by tying a cord about the neck or suffocated by tying a towel over the face.

The incident of refusing money by the British parliament to provide a statue to Oliver Cromwell seems to have been bad politics all round. Because of it Irishmen are accused of intolerance and the Liberal Unionists of cowardice, and Mr. Gladstone is exercised at the outcome, which is calculated to affect unfavorably the interests of his party in the approaching parliamentary election.

It is officially announced that the Rosebery government will resign. Lord Salisbury will be summoned by Queen Victoria to form a new British ministry and his cabinet will proceed with the routine business of the House, obtain provisional supplies and then dissolve Parliament. It is expected that the elections will take place about July 10.

A speed of eighty miles an hour, which could have been made ninety miles, in connection with the electric power experiment on the Nantasket branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway Saturday was considered so decisive of the possibilities involved as to constitute a revolution in railroading with reference to steam power.

The Spanish government has recently placed large orders for war material in Great Britain at Glasgow, Newcastle and Birmingham, involving the construction of twenty gunboats and a large quantity of small arms, and the furnishing of heavy consignments of ammunition. The aggregate cost will be $12,500,000.

Senator Quay's disposition to contest for the chairmanship of Pennsylvania's Republican State committee is interpreted to contemplate a use of this preference, if attained, toward securing for him the chairmanship of the National Republican committee.

Herbert Spencer, noticing the statement that the Italian Socialist Ferri supports his theories, says:

The assertion that any of my views favor socialism causes me great irritation. I believe the advent of socialism to be the greatest disaster the world has ever known.

Letters from Mrs. Gladstone to friends in London represent the ex-Prime Minister as being absorbed in theological studies. He devotes assiduous attention to the early fathers, and is taking less interest in politics.
